"SMUGGLED INTO AMERICA."

LENGTH, 750 FEET. COPYRIGHT 1907 PRICE, $82.50.

An American Chinaman is going to China to smuggle Chinese into this country.

He secures two Chinamen whom he dresses up as an Irish man and an Irish woman.

Upon arrival in this country one Chinaman is discovered, the other one escapes in a barrel marked "Limburger Cheese".

Now follows the most amusing scenes showing what happens to the barrel.

When at last the Chinaman is released, he really looks more like Limburger Cheese than like a Chinaman.

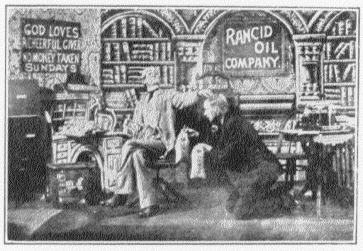
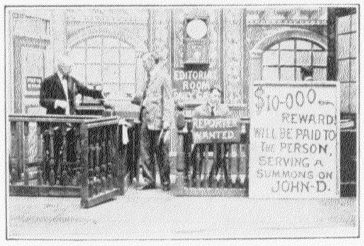
JOHN D. and the REPORTER

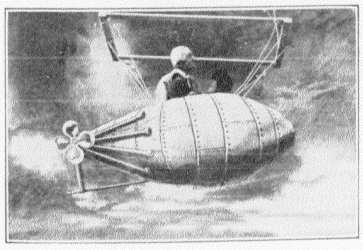
LENGTH, 560 FT. PRICE, $61.60



John D. sits in his private office, where no money is taken on Sunday, but where all loose cash can be brought any old day. The law is after John D. The court officers cannot find him.

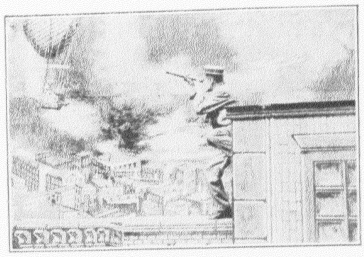


The editor of the Daily offers a reward of $10,000 to any person serving the summons on John D.



An enterprising reporter goes after the $10,000 and incidentally John D. John D., however, is too foxy.

He takes an air-ship and flies away.



The reporter, still after him, follows over roofs, over land and water.

At last, cruel fate overtakes John D. The balloon strikes an oil-tank of the Rancid Oil Co.

The balloon explodes and John D. falls into the oil tank. He is rescued by his working men but, behold! before him stands the reporter with the summons!

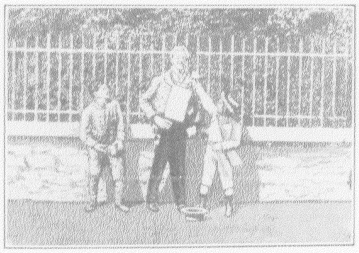
Shortly after this the officer of the Court arrives and receives a check for $29,000,000, which money is squeezed out of the poor consumers' pockets, and poor John D. is happy again.

ONLY KIDS

COPYRIGHT, 1907.

LENGTH, 435 FEET. PRICE, $47.85

Two boys play hookey and carry out all kinds of childish pranks. They play tricks on a blind man for which an innocent passer-by gets all that is coming to him. They interfere with a spooning couple in the park, and play a trick on Charley's best girl.



When they try to play a trick on an old maid's darling they meet their Waterloo, and get all that is coming to them.

A Film full of life and beautiful in photography.
